In Pathfinder Edition, the gladiator class pays homage to this historical legacy. Gladiators are often found in urban areas, where they entertain the masses in organized fights or serve as bodyguards for the wealthy and powerful.

Class Features

The gladiator class offers a unique blend of combat abilities and skills. Here are some of the key features that define this class:

Proficiencies

Gladiators are proficient with simple and martial weapons, as well as light and medium armor. They are also proficient in the Perform (act) skill, reflecting their ability to captivate audiences with their combat prowess.

Combat Training

Gladiators receive extensive training in the art of combat. They gain bonus feats related to combat, such as Weapon Focus and Combat Expertise. They also learn a variety of combat maneuvers, allowing them to disarm opponents, grapple them, or trip them up.

Gladiator's Stance

At 2nd level, gladiators gain the Gladiator's Stance ability. This ability allows them to choose a specific fighting style, such as Polearm Master or Shield Specialist. Each fighting style grants additional bonuses and abilities, tailoring the gladiator's combat capabilities to their preferred weaponry or tactics.

Combat Feats

As gladiators level up, they gain access to a wide range of combat feats. These feats enhance their combat abilities, allowing them to perform devastating attacks, gain bonuses against specific opponents, or even heal themselves in the midst of battle.

Arena Master

At 10th level, gladiators become masters of the arena. They gain the ability to inspire their allies, demoralize their foes, and even perform a finishing move that can end a fight in a single, brutal strike.

Archetypes

The gladiator class offers a variety of archetypes, each providing a unique specialization for the character. Here are two examples:

Brawler

The brawler archetype trades some of the gladiator's combat training for increased unarmed combat abilities. Brawlers can deal devastating blows with their fists, grapple opponents with ease, and gain bonuses to their saves against being disarmed.

Duelist

The duelist archetype focuses on precision and finesse in combat. Duelists gain bonuses to their attack rolls and damage with one-handed piercing weapons. They also learn techniques to disarm opponents and gain advantages in duels.

Role-Playing Opportunities

Beyond their combat prowess, gladiators offer a wealth of role-playing opportunities. They may be former slaves seeking redemption, ambitious fighters seeking fame and fortune, or protectors of the innocent in a chaotic world. Their experiences in the arena can shape their personality, motivations, and relationships.

Players can explore the following themes when role-playing a gladiator:

- The struggle for survival and glory in the arena
- The bonds of camaraderie and rivalry among fellow gladiators
- The moral dilemmas of fighting for entertainment
- The search for purpose and identity outside the arena

The gladiator class in Pathfinder Edition offers a thrilling and versatile option for players seeking a character with unparalleled combat skills and a rich backstory. Whether they are fighting for glory, redemption, or simply the thrill of battle, gladiators are sure to leave a lasting impression on any campaign. With their diverse abilities, archetypes, and role-playing opportunities, gladiators provide endless possibilities for adventure and entertainment.
