Question 1

Which of the following is the best interpretation of the author's claim that "all dogs are mammals"?

1. All dogs are living creatures.
2. All mammals are dogs.
3. Dogs are a type of mammal.

4. Mammals are a type of dog.

Correct Answer: C

The author's claim that "all dogs are mammals" is best interpreted as "dogs are a type of mammal." This is because the statement "all dogs are mammals" means that every dog is also a mammal. Therefore, dogs must be a subset of mammals.

Question 2

Which of the following is the best way to strengthen the argument that "all students who study hard get good grades"?

1. Provide evidence that some students who study hard do not get good grades.
2. Provide evidence that all students who do not study hard get bad grades.
3. Provide evidence that all students who get good grades study hard.
4. Provide evidence that all students who do not get good grades do not study hard.

Correct Answer: C

The best way to strengthen the argument that "all students who study hard get good grades" is to provide evidence that all students who get good grades study hard. This would show that there is a causal relationship between studying hard and getting good grades.

Question 3

Which of the following is the best way to weaken the argument that "all politicians are corrupt"?

1. Provide an example of a politician who is not corrupt.
2. Provide evidence that some politicians are corrupt.
3. Provide evidence that all politicians are honest.
4. Provide evidence that some politicians are not dishonest.

Correct Answer: A

The best way to weaken the argument that "all politicians are corrupt" is to provide an example of a politician who is not corrupt. This would show that the argument is not true.

Question 4

Which of the following is the best way to resolve the paradox that "all Cretans are liars" and "Epimenides is a Cretan"?

1. Epimenides is not a liar.
2. Epimenides is a liar.
3. All Cretans are not liars.
4. The paradox cannot be resolved.

Correct Answer: B

The best way to resolve the paradox that "all Cretans are liars" and "Epimenides is a Cretan" is to say that Epimenides is a liar. This is because if Epimenides is a liar, then his statement that "all Cretans are liars" is false. Therefore, there must be at least one Cretan who is not a liar, which resolves the paradox.

Question 5

Which of the following is the best way to evaluate the argument that "we should ban all guns because guns are dangerous"?

1. Consider the benefits of gun ownership.
2. Consider the costs of gun ownership.
3. Consider the alternatives to gun ownership.
4. Consider all of the above.

Correct Answer: D

The best way to evaluate the argument that "we should ban all guns because guns are dangerous" is to consider all of the above factors. This includes considering the benefits of gun ownership, such as self-defense and hunting, as well as the costs of gun ownership, such as gun violence and accidental shootings. It also includes considering the alternatives to gun ownership, such as increased police presence and stricter gun control laws.
